Aquatic Animals

94% of all living species on earth exist within the oceans.

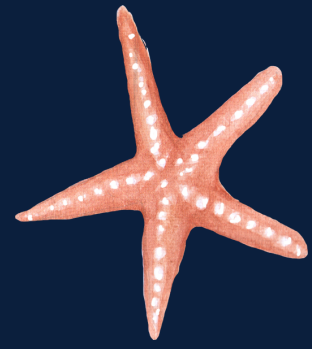

We know there are 240,470 accepted species in the oceans .

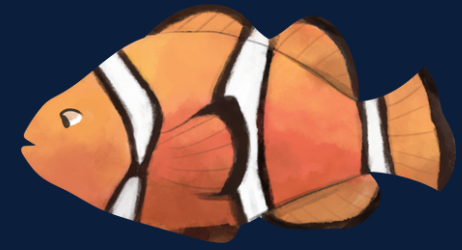

Many species have been in the oceans for millions of years.

How can we care for them?

Due to the fragility of the environments in which they live, conservationists often have a special concern for aquatic animals. Aquatic animals are prone to pressures like destructive fishing, overfishing, climate change, and marine pollution which comes from land and air.

Just putting your rubbish in the proper bin can be a great help to these animals.
